DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 11-14 and 15-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Han (5,991,397) in view of Turnbull et al (6,088,362) and further in view of Heep et al (4,996,709).

Consider claims 11 and 15, Han teaches a multi line telephone system for providing paging feature comprising a first telephone for selecting a group of telephone in the system (col. 1 lines 20-22, and col. 6 lines 46-49); a first telephone initiate a voice message to the group of telephone; and the group of telephones receives and play the voice message from the first telephone automatically regardless of user action and wherein anyone of said group of telephones after hearing said voice message can initiate a two way conversation with the user of the first telephone (col. 7 lines 2-9).

It should be noted that Han is directed to the switching system. Thus it is not a KSU system. Therefore, Han did not clearly suggest wherein the system is a KSU-less system. However, Turnbull et al suggest a KSU-less system providing intercom feature (col. 1 lines 45-55).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teaching of Turnbull et al into view of Han in order to provide subscribers with accessible system-type features that enhance customer services.

Furthermore Han and Turnbull et al did not suggest a half-duplex channel for communication. However, Heep et al teach an intercom system having a speaker portion where communication can be established in half-duplex or full-duplex mode (col. 1 lines 53-55).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize the teaching of Heep et al into view Han in order to provide different modes of communication.

Consider claims 12 and 16, Turnbull et al teach the system wherein at least one of the group telephones comprising a display for providing an identification number of the first telephone (Fig. 2).

Consider claims 13 and 17, Han teaches a timer for setting a predetermined period for the one-way communication response (see col. 5 line 52-63). Han did not suggest wherein the voice message is automatically terminated at a predetermined period. However, it is obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art to acknowledge that when the predetermined time has expired, the communication is automatically terminated. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the stop of terminating the communication when the paging telephone is on-hook in order to end the communications session.

Consider claims 14 and 18, Han teaches the system wherein the two-way communication is initiated by being in an off-hook mode (col. 7 lines 5-9).

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 9/17/2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding applicant's argument that Han does not suggest "the group of telephones receive and play the voice message from the first telephone", and further that Han described an embodiment related to the paging function when the caller does not know the number of the desired extension or the number of an extension group to which the extension subscriber belongs.

Accordingly, the examiner respectfully disagrees with applicant's argument. Han recited, "When the caller at the site of the central office subsequently dials the number of a desired extension subscriber or the number of an extension group to which the extension subscriber belongs...the voice message is then announced, thereby reporting the incoming call" (see col. 6 lines 46-57). Thus, an extension group is known to contain at least 2 telephone extensions. When the voice message is announced to the extension group, it is outputted over that group. Furthermore, the above recited passage clearly indicated that the caller knows the desired extension or extension group when initiate the call. Therefore, Han clearly reads on applicant's limitation as claimed.

Regarding applicant's argument that "Han patent is not shown or describe as connected to the subscriber circuit 115 of Han, such subscriber circuit having the telephone or subscribers connected thereto". Accordingly, the examiner respectfully disagrees. Han's disclosure clearly suggested "central processing unit 111 controls subscriber circuit 115 to send an output from ring generator 116 to telephone set of a desired extension subscriber (see col. 5 lines 41-50). It should be noted that the ringing signal is applied to the extension subscriber when the automatic attendant function is not used. Thus, when the automatic attendant function is used, voice message is generated in place of the ring signal.

Applicant continues on and argued for the similar reason as above. Therefore, response will be the same as provided above.

Regarding new claims 15-18. Since claims 15-18 contain similar limitations to claims 11-14, they will be rejected for the same reason set forth above.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
